

TRACING LABOR PEDIGREES.

CLAIM OF THE PROGRESSIVES TO THE FIFTH ELECTION INSPECTOR.

Hugo Vogt admits that he belonged to United Labor Party Mass until after the Syracuse Convention—Lawyer Wakeman accused of trying to delay the proceedings—Hot words flying between counsel.

BEFORE Referee Francis L. Stetson the hearing in the controversy regarding the fifth inspector of election was continued this morning. The contest was narrowed down to one between the United Labor and the Progressive Labor parties by the withdrawal of their claims by the Irving Hall party. Yesterday the first-named party put in evidence. Thaddeus B. Wakeman, of the Progressives, opened for that party and stated that he would show that George was the nominee of the Central Labor Union; that the committee conducting the campaign of 1886 was only a Campaign Committee and existed long after the formation of the party afterwards called United Labor party, and long after a County Committee had been named by that party and that its funds on hand after the George campaign were returned to the Central Labor Union. He further said that the United Labor party stood on a different platform, and was made up of entirely different men.

The Progressive Labor party, he alleged, was, in any, the one entitled to the fifth inspector. George S. Block, who was Secretary of the Executive Committee of Sept. 28, 1886, and Ludwig Jablonowski, who offered a motion which committed the Central Labor Union to politics, in 1886, substantiated Mr. Wakeman's statement in their testimony, and Hugo Vogt and Henry Enrich corroborated them, all now living in the city.

The United Labor party men were none of them present when the referee was resumed this morning, only their lawyer, E. M. Shod, being on hand. Mr. Wakeman, Enrich, Vogt, Jablonowski and E. M. Shod, of the Progressives, were present, and Hugo Vogt was recalled for cross-examination.

Mr. Vogt acknowledged that the bill for the fifth inspector of election had been framed by all the members of the United Labor party at the time, which was before the expulsion of the Socialists and the Progressive secession. Mr. Vogt personally presented the bill to the Legislature and the Governor asking for the passage of the bill, because he did not think it proper that for the United Labor party to go to the Legislature and a Governor of other party.

To Mr. Stetson Mr. Vogt acknowledged that the reference to "the political agency created by the Central Labor Union" in the platform and resolutions of the Webster Hall conference of the Progressives in September last, was to the United Labor party.

Mr. Shepard asked: "There were ninety-eight trades and labor organizations which united in the Clarendon Hall Conference of 1886. Can you name more than eight of these organizations which are now or have been represented in the Webster Hall Conference?"

Mr. Vogt could not tell. William T. Crossdale, John McMackin and James P. Archibald entered while Mr. Vogt was on the stand. Henry Enrich, recalled, was subjected to an hour's examination, in which was elicited that the Clarendon Hall Conference Committee of 1886 went out of official existence immediately after the election, though it continued to meet occasionally with the view of getting up a justification over the big vote for George.

Mr. Enrich admitted that there was a re-enrollment of the supporters of Hugo George in January last, but said that it was only of that portion of the George voters who were members of the labor organizations.

This closed Mr. Enrich's testimony, and Mr. Shepard here submitted written statement which he asked Referee Stetson to certify. It was that there had been a stipulation by Mr. Wakeman that the case for both sides should be closed at 2 o'clock this afternoon and the referee had agreed to submit his report to the General Term at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Mr. Wakeman objected, and Mr. Stetson assured him that he should not sign the paper. Then Mr. Wakeman said he did not like to be limited to 2 o'clock to-day. Mr. Shepard was taking much time in cross-examination, and he stopped for a moment for a recess, so that he could obtain a verified copy of Judge Van Brunt's order of reference. He did not believe there was the word "forthwith" in the order, and he possibly closed before 3.30 this afternoon. He wanted a fair chance, and he insisted upon having a construction by the Court of the order of Judge Van Brunt. He said words had been omitted in the copy. For that purpose he asked for a recess.

A wordy war was precipitated by this statement. Mr. Shepard accusing Mr. Wakeman of bad faith, an attempt to kill time, and to delay the proceedings that there could be no decision by the courts before election.

Referee Stetson granted a recess of an hour and a half, and an order was entered for it, in which he said that he had no discretion in the matter.

At this Mr. Shepard waxed wroth and impugned the motive of the referee in making this entry, which would go to the Court. He insisted that a fair trial for a case at 2 o'clock to-day had been entered into yesterday.

JUSTICE ON THE CITY HALL.

She Was Put There This Noon, and Now all That Remains is Nicoll's Election.

HARRY at 12 o'clock today Liberty descended on the City Hall, robed in white. The fair goddess had been taking a sun bath till 10.15 on the hot brown roof, lying comfortably on the flat of her back. Then they put a rope around her neck and pulled her up. As she hung suspended from the upper scaffolding she looked as if she had heard of Fellow's election and had suicided. But this was only momentary.

She weighs 170 pounds, is ten feet six inches high and wears three coats of white paint. Yes, some barbarian has painted her. She cost $600, cheap enough to make a book-keeper weep. An iron rod goes through the tube in the statue which is firmly riveted to the sides and holds it firm.

The flagstaff swayed by the strain, but it had been tested by the old wooden statue, which weighed nearly 800 pounds, and there was no accident.

The scales were screwed on to her left hand after she was in position. There is no bandage over her eyes. She will need to shield them to anything going on below with De Lancey Nicoll in the District-Attorney's office.

A crowd gathered in the square and watched the statue being swung into its new position. She holds a massive glaive in her right hand as a hint to boudlers and others of that kidney.

The Planets in November. (From the President's Journal.) The planetary record for November is full of interest. Venus arrayed in glorious garments adorns the morning sky. Saturn hovers near the beautiful cluster Praesepe, and is visible nearly all night long. Jupiter, having been invisible for nearly the whole month, shines near the sun as morning star at its close.

Mars beams with ruddy light in the early hours of the morning. Neptune, the other giant planet, is in opposition with the sun, and is in the position for the telescope. The charming Indian summer that is now upon us, when the air is so pure and birds have flown, lends an atmosphere of repose and serenity to the story of the planets at night, and to the story of the planets at day.

On or about Nov. 14, a number of meteors may be seen, radiating from point to point in the sky. These are called Leonids. Their presence in the sky is as easily accounted for as the movements of the planets. They belong to the same family as the meteor showers which come in at intervals of thirty-three years. The Leonids are not equally common in all years. In 1833, for example, they came in at intervals of thirty-three years. The Leonids are not equally common in all years. In 1833, for example, they came in at intervals of thirty-three years.

The last great shower occurred in 1867. The Leonids are not equally common in all years. In 1833, for example, they came in at intervals of thirty-three years. The Leonids are not equally common in all years. In 1833, for example, they came in at intervals of thirty-three years.

Employees in the Bon Marche. (From the President's Journal.) One of the best organized places of business in Europe is the well-known drapery establishment in the Faubourg St. Germain, called the Bon Marche. Its proprietors are distinguished not only for their success in trade, but also for their continual endeavors to make their numerous hands comfortable and prosperous.

Employees in the Bon Marche. (From the President's Journal.) One of the best organized places of business in Europe is the well-known drapery establishment in the Faubourg St. Germain, called the Bon Marche. Its proprietors are distinguished not only for their success in trade, but also for their continual endeavors to make their numerous hands comfortable and prosperous.

WILL SPIES USE POISON?

ANARCHISTS WHO DECLARE HE WILL NEVER BE HANGED.

Ex-Gov. John M. Palmer, of Illinois, Thinks That Justice Has Been Done and Can See No Sense in all the Talk about the Inhumanity of Hanging Men Who Are Convicted Murderers—Anxiety in Chicago.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—A rumor was current last night that Spies, the Anarchist, had determined to commit suicide rather than die on the scaffold. There are Anarchists in Chicago who declare that Spies will never be hanged. They agree no earthly power can avail, but stoutly maintain that their leader will cheat the gallows.

The intelligence has been communicated to the proper authorities, who may be able to thwart any suicidal attempt which Spies may make.

Under existing regulations it would be an easy matter to convey to the doomed seven men enough poison to kill seven men. Ex-Gov. John M. Palmer, who is in the city on business, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter this morning that the Supreme Court decision in the Anarchist case met his perfect approval. "Judge Magruder's opinion in the Illinois Supreme Court," he said, "went right to the root of the whole argument in sustaining the constitution of the jury, and I am sure that the Supreme Court should convince every fair-minded man that justice has been done. As far as the idea of its being inhuman to hang these men, I can assure you, I have seen several men killed several policemen—did they not? and wounded many more. Was that humanity? The talk about Gov. Oglesby being influenced by these appeals on the ground of humanity and mercy, I don't believe it."

Gov. Oglesby is a man of courage and always upon the side of law and right, and he is not going to be persuaded from his duty by any person's consideration whatever. The highest courts in the land have decreed this verdict a just one, and Gov. Oglesby is not going to be swayed in his manifest duty by any trifling consideration. I do not say this by any authority from him, but simply from what I know of him as a man."

GREAT ANXIETY IN CHICAGO.

All Eyes are Now Looking Toward Gov. Oglesby—What Will He Do?

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The feeling over the Anarchist situation is feverish in the extreme. Business men generally are conservative in expressing opinions on the situation, and there is a strong undercurrent of anxiety as to the probable outcome of a refusal by Gov. Oglesby to interfere in the execution of the condemned men. The Anarchist district of the city swarms with detectives and police in citizen's dress, and it is generally expected that the authorities will nip any outbreak of bomb-dropping or incendiarism in its incipience.

The sole hope of the Anarchists lies in the fact that Gov. Oglesby is exceptionally well-behaved and merciful. As Parsons and Spies have made the alternation, "Liberty or Death," it is scarcely probable that the Governor will temper justice with the extent of mercy. He is expected to leave the matter to the jury, and to leave the matter to the jury, and to leave the matter to the jury.

As soon as the news from Washington had become generally known yesterday there was a rush of citizens to see the candidates for Governor. It was too late, however, for Sheriff Matson would allow no one but relatives inside the jail.

Mrs. Engel was among the first visitors. Her poor, worn face was a dazed, frightened expression. She was looking at the man who the last third of hope had broken. She brought a basket of food for her husband and sat silent in her chair near the cell door while her husband made a pretense of eating. Ling's young lady cousin and aunt came next, followed by Spies's two brothers, Chris and Ferdinand.

Mrs. Parsons came with her two little children. She talks more and more, and it does not seem to be so deeply touched as those of the other female relatives of the Anarchists who have never figured upon the rostrum. Nina Van Gant was among the latest arrivals. Her face was pale, and her eyes were filled with tears. She talked to Spies until the jailer gave the signal that the hour was up.

Every one of the prisoners bore the semblance of cheerful spirits, and one and all laughed at the idea of signing a petition to the Governor for their lives.

The feeling in Springfield is that the Governor will not interfere with the sentence of the court, and that the conditions of the Anarchists are such that he cannot.

French Canadians Much Displeased.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 3.—When the name of Edmund K. Sheppard, proprietor of the Toronto News, who is charged with libeling officers of the Sixty-fifth Battalion while in the Northwest rebellion, was called at the Court of Queen's Bench, which opened yesterday, his counsel submitted a certificate from a Toronto physician to the effect that Sheppard was unable to leave his home through illness. The Crown Prosecutor thereupon moved for a bench warrant.

This case has given rise to a good deal of ill-feelings on the part of French Canadians here, many of whom accuse Ontario authorities of conspiring to prevent Sheppard from being brought to justice for libeling their favorite regiment.

Trouble Over Rabbi Weinstein's Estate. (SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 3.—Interesting developments have grown out of the death of Rabbi Wolf Weinstein, in this city. Mr. Weinstein lived here with a woman supposed to be his wife. He had his life insured for several years in the interest of the woman, who has failed to get the money paid to her. Her claim set up by a daughter, an alleged daughter, who says her father, Mr. Weinstein, deserted her mother and two daughters and that he afterward lived in New Haven, Conn.; Montgomery, Ala., and Charlotteville, N. C. The alleged wife of Weinstein resides in St. Louis. Weinstein's estate is valued at $20,000.

Between Boston and the Provinces.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 3.—The Canada and Atlantic Steamship Company has been organized in this city to run a line of first-class passenger steamers between Charlottetown, Halifax, and Boston. The boats are now building in the Clyde. They are to have the speed of fifteen knots and make the run between Halifax and Boston in twenty-four hours.

New York Cattle May Enter Maine.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 3.—The quarrel against the States of Massachusetts and New York, which has been in force for some months, has been declared off, and there will be no restrictions against bringing cattle into Maine for milk, beef or breeding purposes until further notice.

Cowpox in the State.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) BOSTON, Nov. 3.—The report of the Boston and Albany Railroad for the quarter ending Sept. 30, shows a net income of $208,345, against $270,000 for the same time last year.

SALTONSTALL SEES THE PRESIDENT.

"Don't They Know Yet That I Am a Rock on That Question?"

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Collector Saltonstall came here yesterday to see Secretary Fairchild and other officials about some changes in the service and methods of the Boston Custom House. He called on the President yesterday morning, and dined with the President last evening. The other guests at the dinner were the members of the Cabinet in town and ex-Secretary Fish.

Saltonstall finished his business with Secretary Fairchild this morning, and left for Boston this afternoon. An EVENING WORLD correspondent saw Collector Saltonstall yesterday at the residence of Secretary Endicott, whose guest he was while here. In response to a question, he said that he did not wish to say anything about the Custom-House matters, which brought him here, because they were yet unsettled.

"Did you have an opportunity to talk about politics with the President when you saw him yesterday?" "Yes, I talked with him for some time about general politics," and then Mr. Saltonstall summed up the President's observations as follows: "I was confident that the Democratic party and the success of the Democratic party as the best hope of reform. He has no interest in the cliques and sections, but in the whole party, and, as desired, as all Democrats must, be united about the goal, and he proved this reading members out of the party who are supposed to be unsound on some special question as poor policy and bad management."

The EVENING WORLD correspondent asked Mr. Saltonstall whether Civil Service reform had been especially referred to during his conversation with the President. "I talked incidentally to certain questionings by certain independents as to the course of the reform, whereupon the President said: 'Don't they know yet that I am a rock on that question?'"

Mr. Saltonstall said that the President looked at politics in a large way, with a view to large results. "He concluded," more impressed with the sincerity and strength of the President than when he spoke of his desire for the success of his party, in order to insure the success of the reforms which are so near his heart."

A DEAD SEA SERPENT AT CAPE MAY.

It Reminds the One Seen Off the Jersey Coast Last Summer.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) CAPE MAY, Nov. 3.—A dead sea serpent is the attraction now at Sewell's Point. It was discovered Tuesday by H. W. Hand, Jr., and Harry Ludlum, of this city, as they were gunning for meadow birds. The boys thought it to be a log that had been stranded, but on closer examination their minds were disabused of the idea. The lads measured it with their guns and found it eleven and a half feet long and the body two feet thick. The head of the animal is shaped like a whale's, and from which point the body tapers gradually to its pointed tail. Coarse thick hair covers its shark-like skin and a mouth big enough to eat in one of the boys' heads was found, armed with sharp, cutting teeth.

An old fisherman says: "I caught the same chap I saw last summer off the coast of Cape May. It was a dead serpent. The damned thing popped up alongside my boat and reared its head high in the water. That's the same creature, and no mistake."

A local naturalist is examining and dissecting the probable sea-serpent and trying to find out to what order of marine animals it belongs. The late storm is supposed to have been the cause of getting it in the breakers, and beaching it. The sea birds have somewhat eaten it in places, but there is enough of the creature left to suggest the idea that it is a voracious sea serpent, and it is not unlikely that it will be found to be a member of the same family as the sea serpent which was seen off the Jersey coast, though not so large by ten or fifteen feet.

O'BRIEN IN A SMALL CELL.

He Will Not Do Menial Office or Associate With Criminals.

(SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.) DUBLIN, Nov. 3.—United Ireland asserts that a secret circular was issued by the police authorities to the forces at Mitchelstown before the meeting on the 9th of September, at which the policemen fired on the people, urging the vigorous suppression of all Nationalist meetings and instructing the police not to give way to or compromise with the Leagueurs.

The cell in the Lamoreaux Jail which Mr. O'Brien occupies is in eight feet long and six wide. He slept last night on a plank bed. He has given warning to the Governor of the jail that he will refuse to do menial office, and will not associate with criminals. The Governor will await official notification from the General Prison Board before enforcing their decision that Mr. O'Brien should be treated as an ordinary prisoner.

Reign of Robbery in Nova Scotia.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 3.—The residents of Musquodoboit Harbor and the adjoining district of Jeddore, are experiencing a reign of terror, caused by the depredations of a band of marauders who attack travelers on the public highway at night, and in one instance came very near murdering a well-known physician. Night robberies and burglary have been common occurrences. Four stores in Jeddore have been robbed in one night, and a large quantity of goods stolen. Many other robberies of a similar nature have been reported and people are afraid to venture abroad after dark.

Look Out for the Old Bridges.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 3.—The Connecticut Railroad Commission, in their report, say that the New York and New England road, which has been in use so long east of Hartford should be carefully watched. In many cases the tin covering has ceased to be a protection from rain, and the conditions are favorable to a rapid decay of the old timber.

The Hawarden's Cargo Affre.

(SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.) LONDON, Nov. 3.—The British steamer Hawarden, which left Savannah Oct. 18, for Reval, put into Puenosaber Harbor this morning with her cargo on fire.

Jefferson Davis Bound for Beauvoir.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) FALCON, Ga., Nov. 3.—Jefferson Davis and family left for home this morning in a special car, elaborately decorated with flowers, bunting and flags of the Union.

Boston and Albany Quarterly Report.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) ALBANY, Nov. 3.—The report of the Boston and Albany Railroad for the quarter ending Sept. 30, shows a net income of $208,345, against $270,000 for the same time last year.

AGAINST BOSS DICTATION.

THE BOODLERS ALREADY SEE THE HAND WRITING ON THE WALL.

Thousands of Democrats Showing Their Resentment at the Police Justices' Methods—No Labor Votes for the Hot Springs Candidate—Many Offers to Help in the Nicoll Campaign Already Received.

HERE is no doubt about it. The citizens of this town are thoroughly aroused, and are determined to stamp with their approval the proposition of the Cooper Union Independent meeting to promote De Lancey Nicoll to the place of Prosecutor-in-Chief of the boudlers. Democrats by the thousand are showing their resentment at boss dictation, and Republicans are smiling at the shrewdness of their local leaders in so quickly responding to the call of the people for the nomination of Mr. Nicoll. At the headquarters of the Committee of One Hundred business men of all parties, in the Hotel Bartholdi, there are all the symptoms of happiness, while Boss Power and his friends wear a look of anxiety.

At the Hoffman House there is much conversation about the leaders who wear serious faces, and at the headquarters of the United Labor party there is nothing which might be considered even a straw for the followers of the Police Justices' ring. For the Labor men in the error of the bossing their opportunity. They say that last year they beat the Republicans by a handsome majority, and by hard work they may elect their ticket this year. At any rate, there will be no defection to the Hot Springs candidate.

FELLOWS OUT OF THE RACE. The Labor men say that the contest is simply between Post and Nicoll and that Tweed's friend is fully out of the fight. They have nothing to say against Mr. Nicoll. In fact, they believe there is a working chance for Post. They base this belief on the theory that in spite of the abuse which Mr. Nicoll has been subjected to, he is a man of high character, and in spite of his vilification of John Kelly, the stanch old straight-outs of the wigwag will bend the knees to their County Democratic bosses.

But at the headquarters of the Martine and Nicoll Business Men's Committee may be seen any day just now signs that there will be no such thing as a working chance for Post. The Committee is made up of the knaves of the County Democratic bosses, and they are all in a fever of activity. They are all in a fever of activity. They are all in a fever of activity.

Nearly all of the callers are Democrats who will not submit to boss dictation. It is essentially their canvass. Republicans will vote for Nicoll as the independent candidate, and John Smith, of the firm, and the Counties of thousands of Democrats who are not led by a string, who vote on principles, and whose only law of political guidance is the light of their own consciences. There are about four hundred visitors at the big headquarters daily, and letters offering assistance and inclosing money are received by every mail.

Among the letters opened this morning are those of assistance from George H. Star, lawyer at 4 and 6 Warren street; Henry M. Gescheidt, 33 Park row; George Baker, of Baker & Baker, 181 Broadway; Capt. William Fowler for his firm, 70 John street; E. T. Kline, of John Smith, of the firm, and the Counties of thousands of Democrats who are not led by a string, who vote on principles, and whose only law of political guidance is the light of their own consciences. There are about four hundred visitors at the big headquarters daily, and letters offering assistance and inclosing money are received by every mail.

Nearly enough volunteers have come forward, offering their services for the distribution of tickets at the polling places. In fact, although the canvass for Mr. Nicoll is in the hands of men who are not in the least closely identified with their business that they are only amateurs at the political machinery, there is so much earnestness and determination among the supporters that they will win against the trained men of the bosses by the very force of their numbers and patriotic enthusiasm.

The Nicoll nickel button turns up in unnumbered places on almost every street. It is worn by thousands of Democrats, not Democratic politicians, but that class of men who make up the bulk of the population, and who are not in the least identified with their business that they are only amateurs at the political machinery, there is so much earnestness and determination among the supporters that they will win against the trained men of the bosses by the very force of their numbers and patriotic enthusiasm.

The Nicoll nickel button turns up in unnumbered places on almost every street. It is worn by thousands of Democrats, not Democratic politicians, but that class of men who make up the bulk of the population, and who are not in the least identified with their business that they are only amateurs at the political machinery, there is so much earnestness and determination among the supporters that they will win against the trained men of the bosses by the very force of their numbers and patriotic enthusiasm.

The Nicoll nickel button turns up in unnumbered places on almost every street. It is worn by thousands of Democrats, not Democratic politicians, but that class of men who make up the bulk of the population, and who are not in the least identified with their business that they are only amateurs at the political machinery, there is so much earnestness and determination among the supporters that they will win against the trained men of the bosses by the very force of their numbers and patriotic enthusiasm.

The Nicoll nickel button turns up in unnumbered places on almost every street. It is worn by thousands of Democrats, not Democratic politicians, but that class of men who make up the bulk of the population, and who are not in the least identified with their business that they are only amateurs at the political machinery, there is so much earnestness and determination among the supporters that they will win against the trained men of the bosses by the very force of their numbers and patriotic enthusiasm.

The Nicoll nickel button turns up in unnumbered places on almost every street. It is worn by thousands of Democrats, not Democratic politicians, but that class of men who make up the bulk of the population, and who are not in the least identified with their business that they are only amateurs at the political machinery, there is so much earnestness and determination among the supporters that they will win against the trained men of the bosses by the very force of their numbers and patriotic enthusiasm.

The Nicoll nickel button turns up in unnumbered places on almost every street. It is worn by thousands of Democrats, not Democratic politicians, but that class of men who make up the bulk of the population, and who are not in the least identified with their business that they are only amateurs at the political machinery, there is so much earnestness and determination among the supporters that they will win against the trained men of the bosses by the very force of their numbers and patriotic enthusiasm.

The Nicoll nickel button turns up in unnumbered places on almost every street. It is worn by thousands of Democrats, not Democratic politicians, but that class of men who make up the bulk of the population, and who are not in the least identified with their business that they are only amateurs at the political machinery, there is so much earnestness and determination among the supporters that they will win against the trained men of the bosses by the very force of their numbers and patriotic enthusiasm.

The Nicoll nickel button turns up in unnumbered places on almost every street. It is worn by thousands of Democrats, not Democratic politicians, but that class of men who make up the bulk of the population, and who are not in the least identified with their business that they are only amateurs at the political machinery, there is so much earnestness and determination among the supporters that they will win against the trained men of the bosses by the very force of their numbers and patriotic enthusiasm.

OLD ANANIAS'S GALL.

Having Stabbed Hancock and Defeated Cleveland, He Yells 'Treason' at Anti-Boudler Democrats.

MR. BIRD STILL MISSING.

His Wife of the Opinion that He Has Met with Fatal Play.

William E. Bird, a boss truckman at 56 Warren street, and living at 212 West Eleventh street, has disappeared. The officers at police headquarters for the past four days have been scouring the city, in vain attempt to find a clue to his whereabouts. Saturday morning he left home as usual and attended business as late as 5 o'clock. Then he was seen at the office, and, with a single exception, nothing has been seen or heard from him.

At 4 o'clock that day, H. C. Smith, who has a desk-room in Bird's office, talked with him at the latter place, and engaged for a meeting half an hour later. Mr. Smith was called away directly afterward and when he returned Mr. Bird was gone. Mrs. Bird, unable to account for her husband's disappearance, although she fears foul play. He was a domestic man, not inclined to society and always spent his evenings at home.

Bird is a nephew of Sergt. Bird, of Inspector Byrne's staff, is a rather short, well-built man, some thirty-three years old and weighing about 150 pounds. He has dark hair and a light, thick mustache. His face is quite heavily pitted from smallpox. When last seen he wore a dark-mixed suit and derby hat, dark tie and turndown collar.

John McPartland, thirty-five years old, of 9 Carmine street, who said he was a member of the Lincoln Club, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Court to-day on a charge of personating a policeman.

At 8.30 o'clock last evening, in company with another, he called at Mrs. Reiss's boarding-house, No. 7 Fifth avenue, and represented himself, it is alleged, to be an officer from the Mercer street police station. The second man, had been a boarder at Mrs. Reiss's and owed a bill. When he left his clothing was left as security for the debt.

When the boarder found that he must leave his clothes behind him he threatened to get a policeman and went away. He returned a few minutes later with McPartland and Mrs. Reiss fearing trouble, gave up the clothing. Soon afterwards a roundsman, who had been looking for the man, learned the story and arrested McPartland.

Justice Patterson adjourned the case until to-morrow, to enable Mrs. Reiss to procure a witness. The prisoner was allowed to go on his own recognizance.

STENA SCHMIDT IS WANTED.

If She Does Not Return Home Her Father will Disinherit Her.

Stena Schmidt left her home between the hours of midnight and 6 o'clock in the morning, Sept. 26, taking with her all her clothing and other possessions in a bundle too large for one person to carry. Stena, who is seventeen years old, is a very attractive-looking girl, with blue eyes and light hair, slender and of a happy and lively disposition. Her father, C. August Schmidt, who keeps a saloon and lodging house at 70 East Ninth street, can find no motive for her sudden disappearance, as she was always well treated at home and seemed happy and contented.

Mr. Schmidt accused Charles Tyler, a colored waiter on a Pennsylvania Railroad dining-room car, of knowing something about the disappearance of his daughter. Tyler had indeed for some time at Schmidt's saloon and had met Stena frequently. He left the house on the evening preceding Stena's flight.

Tyler took Schmidt to his rooms in Jersey City, where he claimed to have a wife living, to show that Stena was not with him. Mr. Tyler was not in. Schmidt made no other effort to see her. He says that unless Stena returns home at once he will disinherit her.

Mexican National Railway Affairs.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 3.—Gen. Palmer and James Sullivan, who are identified with the construction of the National Railway, arrived here this morning. The English interests, which dominate the affairs of the Company, have been displacing old officials who were faithful to the Palmer-Sullivan policy, and the new officials have come on to watch matters. There is much jealousy between the English and American interests in the management of the road which will soon change.

Prob Keeps Up His Good Work.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Weather indications for tomorrow, Nov. 4, are: light, variable winds, generally clearing, with a slight fall in temperature.

For Eastern New York: fair weather; light, variable winds, shifting to south-west, with a slight fall in temperature.

For the South: a slight fall in temperature.

For the West: a slight fall in temperature.